Dear Simon

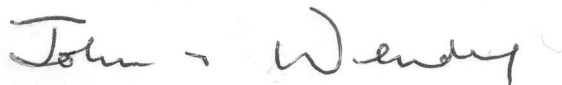

Now that we have had chance to take a breather, we felt we must write and thank you more formally for finding us our brand new home in France.

Without a doubt, we would not have found our house without having someone like you to do the groundwork. Someone who has the contacts and be on the spot when the right property comes on the market is absolutely essential.

As you know, we had spent over a year trying to find the right property on rushed weeks and weekends in France. On many occasions, agents wanted to sell us what they wanted to get rid of, not what we really wanted. So to have someone in France looking for property to our specification, do the introductions and guide us through what can be a complicated process was just what we needed.

We wish you every success for the future.

With our thanks and best wishes
